In addition to the outright Championship Awards, the structure for the six-round Motorsport Australia Rally Championship (ARC) 2020 season has been released. With the exception of the ARC Teams Cup, eligible drivers and co-drivers will automatically be entered into the following categories upon registering for the ARC.

ARC2: Competing in the ARC2 are all registered competitors, with the exception of those who receive manufacturer support. Competitors will need to complete a minimum of three events, with their best four results counting towards their place in the category.

ARC3: This is for the 2WD drivers and co-drivers (replacing the 2WD Championship). Once again, to be eligible for a result in this category, competitors will need to complete a minimum of three events, with their best four results counting.

ARC4: Competitors in ARC4 will need to complete a Home State round of the ARC plus a second round that has been nominated by their relevant State Rally panel. All ARC2 competitors will be eligible, with the exception of those in R5 and AP4 vehicles.

J-ARC: This is a Junior category, for competitors under the age of 25 prior to the commencement of competition season. These competitors must be in a normally aspirated 2WD to be eligible, and will need to compete in a minimum of three events with the best four counting towards their final result.

M-ARC: Is a Masters category for competitors over the age of 40 prior to the commencement of the competition season. Competitors will need to complete a minimum of three events, with their best four results counting towards their place in the category. All vehicles are eligible.

ARC Teams Cup: To participate in this category, teams of three crew need to nominate before the end of documentation. Team's best two results are to count per event, and the winning team will have the highest point score after each round and at the end of the season. Teams who receive manufacturer support are ineligible for this category. All vehicles are eligible.
